

Conflict Minerals Policy

This policy applies to all stakeholders to Propoint.

Propoint recognizes that the mining of common minerals in the Democratic Republic of Congo and neighboring countries in some cases are funding organizations that violate human rights, causes serious damage to the environment and is a part of other illegal activities.

In accordance with our core values, Propoint consider any such consequence not acceptable and will make efforts within our reach to prevent that such conflict minerals are used in any products assembled at Propoint.

As a consequence, suppliers' stance in this matter will be an important criteria in our supplier evaluation.

An important note to our customers is to ensure during design that only manufacturers that can guarantee the absence of conflict minerals are approved.
